REPUBLICAN TICKET.

FOR PRESIDENT,
WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,
JAMES S. SHERMAN.

THE PRESIDENTS QUALITIES.

It is patriotic to stand for the preservation of the constitutional rights of the people of the United States, and for the conservation and promotion of all their interests.

That President Taft does.

It is wise to think upon and determine by what methods and in what ways the greatest good to the greatest number can be accomplished.

President Taft has done that.

It is courageous to remain firmly opposed to all speciously attractive, radical, unwholesome propositions by means of which dramatically reckless agitators evoke hysterical acclaim and secure a temporary following.

And that President Taft is doing, dignified, sincere, earnest, President Taft makes appeal to the intelligence of the people. He presents the record of his administration and asks judgment upon that. He is policies and purposes, in harmony with record, to which he will adhere if he is elected. He speaks of plain facts and definite intentions. He shuns generalities and promises which may mean anything or nothing at all. He would not have credit or appreciation due to him. His aim is to public mind, to stimulate thought, to the people to see the actualities of present, the probabilities of the future; to be open-eyed to the blessing that they are and to the dangers that threaten behind the most theatrical and vociferous professions of solicitude for their welfare. He makes it plain that the nation will be as safe in trusting him in the future as it has been in the past, during the many years in which he has ved it in various positions. He does this effort for effect. His reliance is upon what he says, not upon the manner of saying.

He never poses. He could not if he did, for posing and pretense are foreign to nature. He is simply honest, and does think it remarkable that he is. He is but he does not manifest consciousness of fact. He has given faithful and efficient service, but he regards that only as duty, an obligation discharged.—Albany Journal.

PUBLICITY FOR RAILROAD ACCIDENTS.

To many an old railroad man the recommendation that there be greater publicity when accidents occur will sound like rank heresy, jally as it comes from a railroad man in authority, W. L. Clark, vice president general manager of the Illinois Central.

As long been held in railroad circles that most valuable and efficient employee is he who keeps his mouth shut and gives out no information to the public when even a slight mishap occurs. The policy of silence is based upon the apparently reasonable theory that information should come from those in authority and not from understrappers. Nevertheless, it is a policy that is often carried to a ridiculous extreme, and it is also one that has hurt the railroads by conveying the impression that they have something to conceal, whereas in the large majority of cases there is no reason whatever for secrecy.

It is Mr. Clark's belief that the railroads would benefit were they to take the public more into their confidence when accidents are under investigation. He declares that such investigations, when conducted by coroners of commissions, are often farcical because of the inquirers being unfamiliar with the subject. On the other hand, investigations made by the railroads themselves are unconvincing to the public even when the results are made generally known. This is due to the public suspicion, a feeling which the general railroad policy has stimulated instead of trying to overcome.

Publicity in railroad accidents, great or small, would help the roads themselves in more ways than one. The sooner that other railway managers realize this the better it will be for all. The general public is not inclined to be over-exacting; it is not hostile to the railroads. If it were given the true facts, instead of being prevented from securing them, its conclusions would almost always be more just to the roads than they are at present.—Times Star.

Roosevelt's Insult To Negroes.

Savannah News: His attitude in respect to negro delegates shows his insincerity.

His insincerity will crop out in other ways during the convention.

Charleston News and Courier: The Solid South may be broken, it probably will be broken, before many more years have passed, but it will not break on the candidacy of Theodore Roosevelt. The best thing he can do is to hold those black votes he has. If he tries to trade them for white votes in this part of the world he will find himself woefully bunched in the transaction.

New Orleans Times-Democrat: The negro question is being settled peacefully and satisfactorily in the south, and no one is inclined to stir it up again by such crude views on the subject, and such ignorance of the questions really at stake, as are shown by Mr. Roosevelt in his Harris letter.

Baltimore American: The attitude toward the Southern colored voter is the lash of an autocrat laid upon the back of those who dared support Taft at Chicago and could not be bought by Roosevelt's money.

New York Times: No one who has kept tab on the Bull Moose will be deceived by his present demand for white supremacy in the South and recognition of the colored man in the North; least of all will the Southern white people be deceived into any measure of confidence in his intentions. They have long memories down that way and they are not caught twice by the same sort of chaff.

American Magazine: One of the quickest things I ever heard was a remark from a Washington fan which upset Frank Isbell, the veteran, completely. Isbell's head is bald as a concrete, and pavement usually he kept his cap plastered tightly on his head to shield himself from the gibes of crowds. This time he tried to steal second and made a desperate, diving slide around and under the baseman, only to be called out. He was so enraged that he ran at the umpire, grasped his arm, argued and raved, and finally, in sheer anger, jerked his cap, hurled it onto the ground and jumped upon it. His bald head glistened in the sunlight, and the crowd roared. Then, above the roar, came a voice:

"Aw, shut up, you old pieface!" snarled Bob, as he buried a copy of Shakespeare vehemently in Pete's direction and retired gloomily to his bunk.

"Put on that cap. They pinched Mary Garden here for less than that!"

information should come from those in authority and not from understrappers. Nevertheless, it is a policy that is often carried to a ridiculous extreme, and it is also one that has hurt the railroads by conveying the impression that they have something to conceal, whereas in the large majority of cases there is no reason whatever for secrecy.

OUR WEEKLY SPORT LETTER

By C. H. ZUBER.

CINCINNATI, O., August 8th, 1912.

The past week has developed no sensational changes in the matter of the fight for the championship in the two big leagues. In the Americas the Washingtons cut down the margin between them and Boston in a slight degree, while in the National the New Yorks increased their advantage to some extent through consecutive victories. Taking general performances into consideration, and noting the fact that the century mark now has been passed by the teams in the matter of games played, and there is no reason to believe that there will be a change in the leaders between now and the end of the season, notwithstanding the fact that Manager Mack, of the world's champion Athletics, directs that his team will still win out, even though they are 100 points behind the Boston. The prospects are that the world's series between the Boston and the New York will be closer contested than were the games for the highest honor last year. Neither team is particularly strong on star twirlers, and in other respects they are pretty evenly matched. To the metter of attendance, those games will draw the largest crowds that ever attended a world's series.

It is doubtful that any baseball season has ever sprung the number of surprises regard to the work of big league teams that has marked the present year. The wonderful work done by the Reds during the first four weeks of the season furnished the early surprise. Then came the remarkable showing of the Washingtons, the strong performances of the Boston Americans and the weakening of the Philadelphia Athletics. It was a spring season for long shots, and the men who stayed off favorites on the baseball betting had a comfortable summer in a financial way. The Reds' more recent showing has been one of the disappointments of the season. However, it is not natural for a team composed of so much talent to stamp for any great length of time, and experts look for the Reds to come back every time and make a hot finish of it. The club owners still are diligently pursuing promising youngsters, and expect to exhibit quite a crop of these during the next six weeks. The team returns home next week, and will play its first Sunday game on the 18th, when the rejuvenated Boston arbiter.

No outfielder is the National League has created the sensation this season that has followed Armando Marsans, the Reds' Cuban center guard, around the circuit. This chap has all the essentials of a star, lacking a bit of polish, and he will acquire before another season rolls around. When he does he will be in the same class with Cobb, Speaker, Miller and the one or two other really great all round performers in the suburbs. Marsans possessing a decided advantage over a majority of our major stars, and that is his innate love for baseball. It can be truthfully said of him that he would rather play baseball than eat, although up to the present writing he has not been compelled to forego any meals in order to do a little trotting around the field. Marsans has been installed as the Reds' regular center fielder, and will doubtless show great forward strides from now on because of the fact that he has a "attività" job.

Monster Fish in Newport Reservoir

Times-Star.

A catfish, weighing 40 pounds and another 27, were exhibited at a Sixth street hotel, Newport, Tuesday morning. They were taken from the smaller of the two Newport reservoirs, which had been drained by the department. Bass weighing four pounds, Jack salmon, cat and perch weighing three and a half and four pounds, were served to city officials and others at a fish barbecue held over the reservoir Monday afternoon. The cooking was done by a Newport caterer. The basin had not been cleared in fifteen years, and the purpose now is to establish a filtration plant.

A PRAIRIE PURSUIT

Western Drama.

Ever since the Olympic games were on there has been much speculation as to why Horace, the California high jumper, made no better showing than he did in his events. It was expected that he would be the sensation of the Olympiad, but in every respect he failed to live up to his record and reputation. The returning athletes from Stockholm bring the reason for Horace's non-success. They declare that the Swedish officials compelled Horace to completely change the style of his

SPEED PROGRAM

RUNNING RACES AND HARNESS RACES TO BE GIVEN ON EACH DAY.

Cup Races to be Given Each Day by the Gentlemen's Driving Club at Blue Grass Fair.

An excellent speed program has been arranged for the Blue Grass Fair at Lexington, week of August 12th to 17th.

On each of the six days there will be running races and harness racing on every day but Saturday. The two-year-old stake to be contested during the week, closed with 33 entries including nearly all of the best in training in Kentucky. This race has always been one of the best races of the year for two-year-olds and this should prove no exception to the rule.

In addition there will be a 2:16 trot, a 2:20 pace, 3-year-old trot and 2:22 trot. There will be no deduction from winners except in the stake, the entries to which closed May 10th.

Other features will be added and announced later.

THE PARKER SHOWS

Will Present Several Headline Attractions at Blue Grass Fair.

It is always customary for the larger tented enterprises to offer one big feature attraction, sparing neither time or expense to make it the crowning feature of the mighty "Drag." Mr. C. W. Parker, founder and owner of the Parker Amusement Company, who remains at his big factories at Leavenworth, Kan., and directs his various companies from the home office, conceived the idea that a big European novelty would be the proper attraction for his largest company, The Greater Parker Shows. With this idea in view Miss Essie Fay and her beautiful full blooded Arabian were booked for this season's tour of America.

Miss Fay, who was an English woman by birth, was touring Arabia with her father, who at that time was a member of the English Parliament. When a guest of the Prince of Morocco at his palace in Tripoli, the Prince was pleased with Miss Fay and presented her with an Arabian yearling. The young lady shipped the horse to her father's stable. While roving the green with her new pet, she formed an attachment to the colt, and he to her, and in his grace and beauty, she thought she saw something promising. With his increasing brains and grace, and the careful training of his mistress, "Arabia" was quick to win accolades of royalty and nobility in the greatest courts of Europe.

At London, Paris, Berlin, Naples, Madrid, Moscow, Vienna and St. Petersburg "Arabia," under the directions of Miss Fay, has astonished thousands who have witnessed "Arabia" add and subtract, answer questions, "yes" or "no" by the nod of her head, use the telephone, and do other astonishing feats, displaying an animal intelligence almost unbelievable of any dumb brute. "Arabia" goes to a big brass bed, takes off his nightcap, undresses, turns down the covers, arranges the pillows, gets bedded, covers himself up again and apparently goes to sleep. Finishing his exhibition with a startling and exciting fire scene. Crushing down his stable door, he dashes across the lawn to the burning building of his mistress, he reappears leaping through the window with an infant child in his mouth and his mistress across his shoulder. "Arabia" the "fire-fighting" horse and "Arabia" the "good-night" horse will appear in Lexington at the Blue Grass Fair August 7-12.

HALF FAIR RATES TO FAIR

Do not fail to visit the Blue Grass Fair at Lexington the week of August 12th to 17th. One fair rate will prevail on all railroads in Kentucky. Every afternoon and evening beginning Sunday, August 11th, there will be a magnificent band concert by Frederick Nell Jones' Orchestral Band, accompanied by Beatrice Van Loon, one of America's younger sopranos, who is recognized as one of the most charming and delightful soloists before the public to-day.

WOMAN'S DEPARTMENT.

The Woman's Department of the Blue Grass Fair, to be held at Lexington, August 12 to 17th, will be more important and extensive this year than ever before. The premium list has been revised, and classes offered cover almost every kind of woman's work and table luxuries. The third floor of the Art Hall is given entirely to this department, and is usually one of the most attractive exhibits of the Big Fair.

This year the second floor will be utilized by the "Made in Lexington Club," and it is needless to say will be made as attractive as possible, and will be an exposition of wares manufactured in Lexington.

On the lower floor the management has arranged with the Canadian Government Exhibit to bring their display of wheat, grain and other agricultural products. This should attract the attention of every farmer in the state, as it is the same display made at big state fairs and expositions.

STORIES OF CAMP AND WAR

FIGHTING AT FORT STEDMAN

One of First Regiments to Charge Enemy Was 208th Pennsylvania—Stirring Activities.

Your description of the battle of Fort Stedman, March 25, 1865, prompts memory of the stirring activities of the early morning hours of that day. I have a letter from a comrade who stated: "After reading the two last issues of The National Tribune on the Fort Stedman fight one would suppose that our brigade was not in it," etc.

You, of course, could not cover the many interesting details, and for this reason I will make some amplification which will probably interest comrades written Miles C. Huyette of Buffalo, N. Y., in the National Tribune.

The 208th Pennsylvania was on the Bermuda Hundred front—under Butler in the Eighteenth Corps—from late in August, 1864, until late in October when we were relieved by a brigade of colored troops from the Ninth Corps, and we crossed to the south side of the Appomattox river, and formed a part of Hartnett's Division, Ninth Corps. Our winter quarters were in a depression a little north of the Avery House, division headquarters.

The night of March 24-25 was foggy and dark. The smoke of smouldering campfires hung low; all night long the usual crackle of the muskets of the pickets kept up, punctuated with an occasional "hee-haw" of the army mules. We slept fully clothed about 4:30 a. m. I was awakened by an occasional cannon shot, more intense crackle of musketry—nearly volley firing—and the rebel yell. I thought best to get ready for trouble and, without waking my messmates, I took the three canteens and went to a low spot in the swale, where we had a pork barrel sunk in the mud, and filled the canteens with water. When I returned to the hut a mounted officer or orderly (in the darkness I could not determine which) galloped by from division headquarters, and as he passed shouted: "Form your company, and double-quick for Fort Stedman. Don't wait for anybody."

The company (D) was quickly formed, and we started for the fort. To the left rear of Fort Stedman we ran into the rebel skirmishers. We then lay down and began firing. Our line was nearly at right angle to our main line of works and our left about 100 yards to the rear of Fort Stedman. Mortar shells were dropping, by the ton, at an angle from the left, and shrapnel from the same general direction; minie balls and, later, canister, from our own cannon, which had been captured at Fort Stedman and turned on us, from the front.

Fort Stedman was a rim of fire to the north and west. In the darkness we could not determine if or not the fort was in possession of Fort Stedman and it was difficult to prevent the men from firing in that direction. The other companies of the regiment formed on our right.

As daylight approached a slight air movement made a rift in the pall of smoke over Fort Stedman, and we could see Old Glory waving from its ramparts. It looked good, and, oh how we did cheer! The starry flag never before looked so good.

It is a matter of official record that the 208th Pennsylvania was the first regiment to charge the line of the enemy, and cleared the rebels out of our line from Fort Stedman to Fort Stedman, recapturing Batteries 11 and 12 and capturing 350 prisoners. Scott Eckert (Co. D) was the first man back in Fort Stedman, and he was followed by the right of our regiment.

The order to "charge" reached Lieut.-Col. Heintzelman 15 to 20 minutes after we had regained full possession of the works. When the order to charge was given I was on my knees, opening a box of ammunition. Many of the men were out of cartridge boxes and were taking from cartridge boxes of the wounded and dead.

Your description of the close and deadly fighting does not paint the word-picture as red as conditions justified. It was the first place I saw footprints of men in puddles of human blood. Blood was on my boots when the fighting ended. It was hell when we gained full possession of the works firing ceased.

Not a Single Sheep on One-Third of Our Farms

Farm and Fireside, an agricultural paper published at Springfield, Ohio, says about sheep:

"Out of something over six millions of ewes existing in the United States, two-thirds without a single 'golden hoof,' while lamb does than either beef or pork. A fairly good flock of ewes should average at least a lamb and a half per ewe every year, with a dozen and the best of fertilizers thrown in. Would that our farmers would think over this as a change from the usual—the squeakies of politics. There is no discord in sheep."

What's The Matter With Your Baby?

The young mother—and many an old one, too—is often puzzled to know the cause of her child's ill nature. The colorless, listless condition does not necessarily indicate the seriousness of its trouble. It may have nothing more to do with it than that the child is not making up to the general dullness. It cannot, of course, describe its feelings, but as a preliminary measure you are safe in trying a mild laxative.

Nipper, limited in ten, you will find it to be the child needs, for its restlessness and peevishness are perhaps due to obstruction of the bowels, and once that has been remedied the child's American families have been enthusiastic about it for more than a quarter of a century.

Any one wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the first place, can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge. Address to Dr. Caldwell, 111 Caldwells, 406 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

Don't give the little one salars, cathartics or nasal waters for these will act as purgatives, and they are too strong for a child. In the families of
